MSI Worldwide Mail Opens Los Angeles Mail Acceptance and Consolidation Facility

MSI Worldwide Mail, a Dulles, Virginia based international mailing company, today announced the expansion of its mail network in response to increased volume and customer demand. A new Los Angeles facility will handle publications, parcels, direct mail, fulfillment and corporate mail destined for Canada and locations worldwide beginning September 8, 2008.

“The new Los Angeles consolidation facility will benefit our growing West Coast customer base by improving service quality and reducing transportation costs. We will gain almost unlimited access to daily international and domestic flights for our West Coast customers,” said Richard Gerhardt, MSI Worldwide Mail’s Chief Operating Officer. “By constantly optimizing our processing capabilities and reducing handling costs, we can generate cost management advantages for our customers, and assure exceptional international and domestic delivery quality.”

With facilities already established at Washington-Dulles International Airport, Chicago O’Hare International Airport and London Heathrow International Airport, MSI continues to develop a network of new processing and acceptance facilities in major markets around the United States and the world. Currently, two other facilities are planned for 2008: Newark, New Jersey and Windsor, Ontario.

The new Los Angeles consolidation facility is located in Stanton, California in close proximity to Los Angeles International Airport.
